

More than 30,000 Americans have Williams syndrome

The condition occurs in 1 of every 10,000 births worldwide

Most young children with Williams syndrome benefit from therapeutic interventions and special learning strategies.

Private and school-based sessions with specialists in speech, occupational and physical therapy can be extremely helpful in overcoming developmental delays for individuals with Williams syndrome.

More specialized interventions such as aqua therapy, hippotherapy and music therapy can also make a difference in both development and enrichment for children with Williams syndrome.
